

“Technology is the great equalizer between solo and small law firms and large firms. For smaller law firms it puts you on a level field with law firms many times your size. I can now handle 2 or 3 complex construction litigation cases at one time and it doesn’t take over my practice. I can get through 30,000 documents quickly and narrow them down to what I really need to look at. Because of the Lexbe software, the entire playing field has been leveled for my firm.”

Background

Attorneys, paralegals, litigation support, and IT professionals in small and mid-sized law firms face the dual challenge of needing high-quality eDiscovery services and software, but also providing competitive representation to clients without the internal discovery staffing and budget that larger firms can support. Case needs are every bit as complex, but they need to be handled cost effectively and predictably.

Logan & Lowry is an Oklahoma boutique firm founded in 1963 that manages multiple practice areas and handles a variety of complex legal issues for clients.

Case Situation

One of Logan Lowry’s larger clients is a company providing metal fabrication and high performance welding to the Petrochemical and Refining industries. Construction cases by their nature are long-term projects generating a tremendous amount of documents before, during, and after the project is completed. Complex welding in these industries requires inspections in order to comply with safety and environmental regulations and therefore increases the document burden on litigation. When their client became involved in a recent case, Logan Lowry quickly understood they needed a comprehensive eDiscovery system to manage the large number of documents in the discovery process.

“The amount of documentation we had in just one case was the size of a rail car,” said Ruby Wofford, Paralegal at Logan Lowry. “We quickly realized that we needed a strong eDiscovery system to review documents, and stay organized.”

Result:

As a boutique firm Logan & Lowry is able to support the document-intensive needs of their clients without a large upfront technology and staff investment.

“Lexbe has been absolutely wonderful for us. The application is exactly what we were looking for to manage and organize our documents for production and because it is so easy to use we can manage everything ourselves. Their help system works great and guides you to the exact answer you are looking for, but when I do need additional questions Lexbe’s customer service and support is my life-saver. They are always available and very responsive. I don’t know what we would do without them.”

Solution

After evaluating several potential solutions, Logan Lowry selected Lexbe’s eDiscovery platform for their documentation needs. “Once we realized we needed a solution, we evaluated several eDiscovery vendors and found Lexbe to be the best fit because it was geared for a boutique firm.” said Ruby. “While we are a large firm for OK standards, we are still a relatively small firm so we needed a solution that was easy enough for us to manage ourselves without the need for technical resources and staff, was capable of managing our client’s document needs, yet still affordable.” Logan Lowry has attorneys at two different offices so the solution also needed to be accessible for attorneys at multiple locations. Lexbe's cloud-based platform is easily accessed via a web browser and is compatible with Windows, Macintosh, Android and iPhone systems. This enables Logan & Lowry attorneys to work in their office, their clients' locations, while traveling, or from home, resulting in increased productivity and time savings.

“Lexbe has been absolutely wonderful for us,” said Ruby. “The application is exactly what we were looking for to manage and organize our documents for production and because it is so easy to use we can manage everything ourselves. Their help system works great and guides you to the exact answer you are looking for, but when I do need additional questions Lexbe’s customer service and support is my life-saver. They are always available and very responsive. I don’t know what we would do without them.”
